

The Holly Wippermann Memorial Scholarship

Holly Wippermann was a dedicated English teacher, student advocate, and team Mom. She worked the entire school year, giving everything she had to the students, coworkers, and profession she loved so much. Holly was known in the school as Queen Wipp, and people worshipped her intelligence and compassion. After being diagnosed with cancer and realizing she wouldn't return to teaching, she created this scholarship. The Queen wanted to honor students whom she would have loved to teach and help. This scholarship will recognize students demonstrating kindness, empathy, energetic spirit, and a community-focused mindset. She lives on in the legacy she leaves for these students and in the many she influenced throughout her career.
